

Portraits

Of New York

Fashion photographer Antonio Guccione had already completed a book of portraits in Italy when he met Peter T. Tunney, owner of The Time is Now gallery on Broome St. Tunney liked his work so much he not only hosted a show of Guccione's portraits, but also published the $50 softcover "Faces of New York," Guccione's take on more than 70 visitors to Tunney's Park Ave. apartment. How Guccione superimposed his subjects over such varied backgrounds "is his own little secret," says Kathrin, Tunney's assistant and one of Guccione's subjects.

PHOTOS BY ANTONIO GUCCIONE

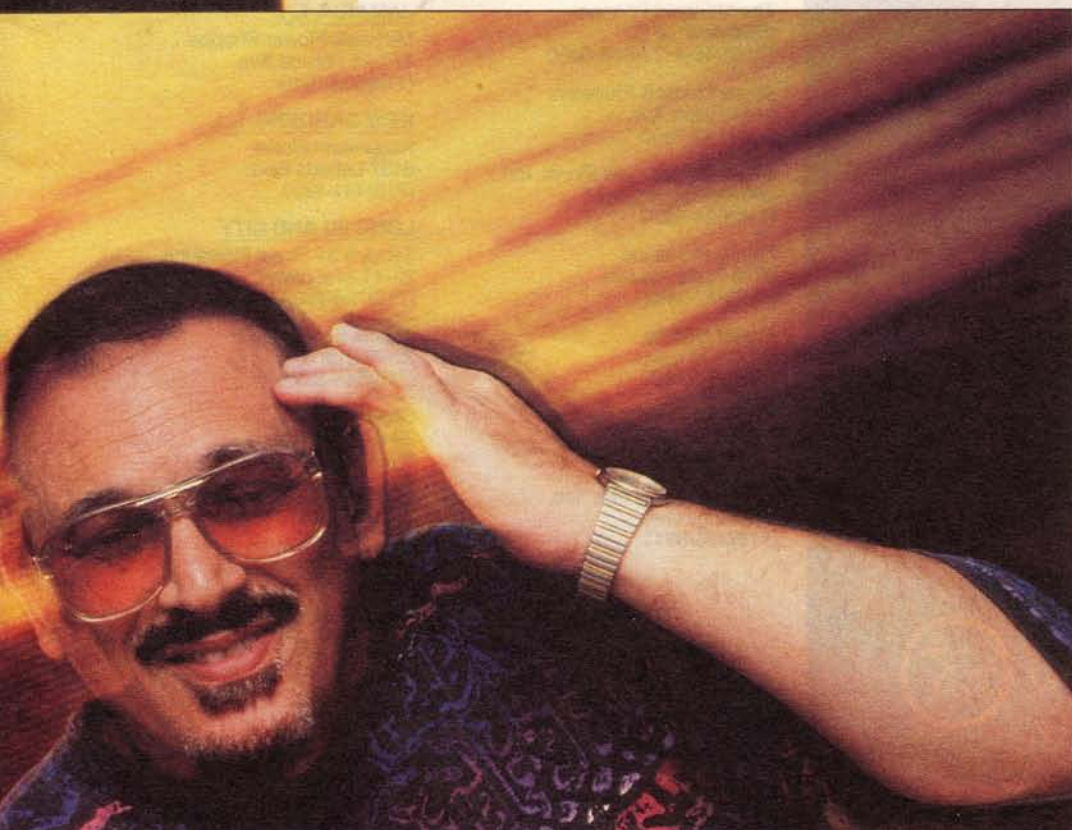

Fifth-generation butchers Stanley, Evan, L. Lobel sharpen tools they use at their Madisons.

Angel Cordero, with three Kentucky Derby wins, wears his own jacket.

Maria Snyder, a former Yves St. Laurent model, strikes a meditative pose.

Do shoot him: He's the piano player. Dizzy Gillespie's